HARRY A. WILBUR.
 Former New York Central Conductor
 Dies in Waterford.
 Harry A. Wilbur, 59, who for 37 years was a conductor on the New York Central railroad, died late yesterday at the home of his sister-in-law, Mrs. Hugh R. Whitman, in Waterford. Death followed an illness of two weeks.
 Mr. Wilbur was born in Albany, the son of James H. and Addie Slack Wilbur. He had lived at the Whitman farm in Waterford for the past five years. His wife died at Waterford about five years ago.
 The deceased is survived by one sister, Mrs. F. D. Simmons of Albany, and one brother, James H.
 Wilbur of Albany.

L'histoire des quatre Anes.

1. We've been spending our vacation
At the Bungalow Hotel,
But instead of recreation
We have had to work like - ?
2. There are four of us together
Julie, Ruthie, Evelyn, Bob -
And we don't know what possessed us
To get such a rotten job.
3. Now, if only we were Horace
Manager of the A.S.P.
We could always have a good excuse
For being late, you see.
4. Because, if excuses are needed
And dear Horace is at a loss,
He always has a champion
In our beloved boss.
5. But, alas, we are not Horace,
No managers are we!
We haven't one spare minute
To spend at the A.S.P.
6. And because we are not Horace
We can never be late without work,
Or people as much as tell us
That we do nothing but shirk.

The lover & the poet (?)

On Christmas morn, I'd offer you Three gifts, as did the Wise Men to
From Eastern lands so far away,
To the one they loved on C. day.
Gold to show ^{you} the preciousness
You give to me in happiness
That can not be so oft expressed.
Frankincense - for scented praise
From altar fires of love I'd raise
And myrrh - for ever must rue
The bitter, sweet, of loving you.
