SCOPE AND CONTENT NOTE:

The Scriptwriting Collection was first discussed in February 2001. Dr. Edmond Chibeau, Communication Department Faculty, and Tara L. Hurt, University Archivist, discussed creating a collection from the material that was generated in two scriptwriting courses offered through the Communication Department. The two courses were offered as Special Topics in the Fall of 2000 and Spring of 2001. The two courses were titled; Scriptwriting (COM 460) and Scripts: Preparation for Publication and Presentation (COM 465). It was agreed in March of 2001 that once the courses were completed, the material would be reviewed for addition to the Archives & Special Collections each year.

In October of 2001 Dr. Chibeau and Ms. Hurt exchanged the material from the two courses in order to assemble it in such a way that users can view the course material. The collection documents, the structure of the two courses, the assignments given to the students, the original scripts produced by the students and professor, the resulting productions, events the class took part in and the publications that were generated by the two courses. The material is organized within each series chronologically and documents the history of these two land-mark courses.

Since the creation of the courses for the 2000/2001 academic year, they have continued to be offered. In May of each year (the end of the academic year) Dr. Chibeau donates the past year's material from the scriptwriting courses to the Archives. The material, added to the collection on an academic year basis, provides a cohesive collection documenting the history of scriptwriting courses at Eastern Connecticut State University.

SERIES DESCRIPTION:

The collection is divided into six series and a detailed description follows:

Series I - Correspondence

The series contains outgoing correspondence from Dr. Chibeau and incoming correspondence from students within the two courses. Examples of the correspondence included in this series are, class notes, schedules and descriptions of writing assignments. The material is arranged chronologically within each grouping: first incoming then outgoing correspondence.

Series II - Individual Scripts

The series contains all scripts written by students in COM 460 and COM 465. Within this series the folders often include rewrites of a particular script including handwritten suggestions by Dr. Chibeau and/or others within the course. Two types of students are represented in this series; 1) Students who actually took one or both of the Scriptwriting courses and 2) Students who contributed to the radio show but did not take either course. The scripts are arranged alphabetically by the author's last name with their respective scripts in alphabetical order.

Series III - Collaborative Scripts

The series contains the scripts of collaborative works completed by students within the two courses. The scripts are arranged alphabetically by the title of the collaborative project.

Series IV - Poetry / Reviews

The series contains poetry that was performed by students within the courses, as well as reviews written by students following attendance at a performance or related event. The material is arranged alphabetically by the author's last name.

Series V - Productions / Events

This series contains all material documenting the preparation for the productions and events that the students took part in. The series contains notes, posters, flyers, video tapes and organizational lists, used by the students and Dr. Chibeau. This series contains material related to: the radio program offered live on ECSU Radio, the Alumni Weekend 2001 events, the Excellence Expo on campus and the Live Old Time Radio Show produced live with both radio and studio audience. The material is organized alphabetically by the name of the event or production.

Series VI - Publications

This series includes all newspaper articles and press releases that pertain to the productions by the students and to events that the students organized and took part in. This material is organized alphabetically by the title of the publication.

Series VII – Projects

This series includes student projects and senior portfolios. This material is arranged alphabetically by the author's last name.
