HISTORY

“The college was established in 1889. It was organized as a state normal school for the training of candidates for teaching positions in the elementary schools of Connecticut. A diploma was awarded on completion of the two-year program.

“In September, 1932, a three-year curriculum was adopted. With the class entering in 1934, a four-year elementary curriculum was inaugurated leading to a Bachelor of Education. By act of the legislature of 1937, the Willimantic State Teachers College has been established.”¹

By act of the Connecticut General Assembly the name of the college was changed to Willimantic State College effective July 1, 1959. The act provided for the college to offer two programs: a teacher education program culminating in a Bachelor of Science degree and a liberal arts program culminating in a Bachelor of Arts or Bachelor of Science degree. In September 1961 the liberal arts program became available to all entering the freshman.”²

By 1969 the teacher training/laboratory school program was being reviewed and re-organized to reflect new developments in education.³ Majors became more specialized as reflected in new Education and Early Childhood Education programs. The Noble School continued as a part of Eastern’s teacher training program until the end of the 1975-1976 academic year when the oversight of the building and educational program was turned over to the town of Windham.⁴

SCOPE AND CONTENT NOTE:

This collection offers information on foundational teacher education programs from 1889-1937. It includes documents from 1938-1959 and program information from fall 1959-spring 1976 illustrating the changes in teacher education during the school’s transition from a teacher’s college to a liberal arts college.

Materials include information about the academic program, instruction in the classroom, sample lesson plans and projects and evaluative reports. It offers documents that illustrate the relationship between college instruction and hands-on practice teaching in rural schools, model/training schools and consolidated schools. The collection also includes placement records and evaluations of individual students dating from 1927-1965.

SERIES DESCRIPTION:

Series I – Program Information

This series offers information about educational programs as applied to a normal school (standardized) education and training in the classroom. The earliest material includes copies of course catalogues as well as reports and descriptions of special programs. It also offers study guides, teachers’ manuals, information on model/laboratory school activities (Windham Street/Noble School), descriptions of curricula, minutes from Education Division meetings and descriptions of masters’ level coursework offered through the “new” Graduate Division and a proposal for a Teacher Education Resource Center.

Series II – Student Teaching

This series offers original teaching contracts from 1856 & 1900 and student copy books dated 1868 & [1911]. It includes the copy books, student notebooks, lesson plans and projects of former student teacher, Rose M. Levin (1912-1914) and Faith Lee (1923) plus classroom projects dated 1923, 1953 & 1965. This series also includes copies of the publication F. R. Noble School Newsletter (1957-1970) which offers information about the classroom activities at our own teacher training facility. It also offers information on the first Teacher Education Resource Center (T.E.R.C.).

Series III – Training and Placement Records -Restricted

This series is a collection of student records that date from 1927 to 1969. Included are single placement ledgers dated 1929-1953, 1960-1969 and a collection of individual student teaching records dating from 1927 through 1962. Contents may include student grades, evaluations, photographs and job placement information. Some restrictions apply.
